PRESS RELEASE

Kedron-Wavell installs protective measures

Westfield Chermside plans to introduce a three-hour limit for free parking in a bid to stop commuters taking up spaces meant for shoppers as currently a large proportion of non-shoppers are using valuable spaces all day.

Although we appreciate the Chermside Bus Interchange and recognise the benefits it provides for the community, there needs to be solutions found to accommodate these commuters.

We understand as a fellow business in the area that parking is an important issue, however we also need to ensure that our parks remain available for genuine users of our facilities.

Regrettably our carpark is not public and is not available for any non-users of the Kedron-Wavell Services Club precinct. As a result of these recent changes the Club must now implement a variety of preventative measures to ensure our car park is available to our genuine patrons which include the new fencing, increased security and towing arrangements.

The towing will start this month and any known offenders will be towed at the owners cost with a maximum cost of $400. If these measures aren't working to our satisfaction, boom gates will be installed.

We would like to stress that our car park will remain open and free to our genuine customers and we look forward to providing them with free car parking into the future.

We apologise for any inconvenience patrons may experience over the coming months but unfortunately these measures are necessary to ensure our parks remain free for our members and guests.
