PRESS RELEASE

SMALL MERCIES TO LAUNCH NEW BAR

Anticipation has been building over the last few months at Kedron-Wavell Services Club as each stage of the 2 million dollar makeover of the old bar has been completed. The final covers are due to come off over the next week, revealing a contemporary new look bar and lounge which will be officially launched to the public on Saturday 29th November with Small Mercies performing live!

The stylish new Gallipoli bar is designed to cater for a variety of people and purposes and includes a smart new TAB facility a purpose built sports lounge featuring two massive 50 inch screens and a progressive new bar which runs almost the full length of the room.

Secretary Manager, Chris Sartori is hoping this new look area will not only cater much better for Kedron-Wavell Services Club's current members but also appeal to a much broader market, providing more variety for the local residents when considering a night out.

'While there is a wide variety of clubs, pubs and sports bars closer to the city, there are very few venue's in the local area that provide the wide range of services that we now offer. From a night out to watch the grand final, to a flutter on the horses, to enjoying a delicious cocktail after work, the new Gallipoli Bar is diverse in its appeal. The incredibly reasonable Club prices have always been an attraction, even more so in the current economic climate, but they are rarely matched with such a modern, well presented facility.

The official launch of this modern new bar will be held on Saturday 29th November from 8pm. The night is sponsored by Bundaberg Rum who will be running promotions and prize giveaways on the night. Guest appearances will also be made by various sports stars, and acclaimed rock band Small Mercies will be performing live!

These local Brisbane boys have recently gained international recognition for their work and are commonly described as a classic rock band for the modern era. Their songs bristle with a mood of instant familiarity. Break the band into sonic parts and you'll hear chiming choruses, shimmering guitars and an explosive bottom end; all of which are fronted by a young voice fit to fill arenas, stadiums and the airwaves.

You do not want to miss out on this special live performance, as the boys play the explosive collection of rock tracks off their debut album 'Beautiful Hum' including hit singles 'Sorry', 'Innocent' and their latest 'Don't You Know Who I Am'. The night kicks off at 8pm and entry is free!
